THE CUBAN QUESTION.

Utah Pointing the Morale of Cuba.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-Please tell your readers that those Spanish murderers need fear no early retribution. Are not the bones of 134 men, women and children bleaching in the deserts of Utah, murdered by Mormons 15 long years ago, still unavenged? Alas, the days of justice and retribution are past in the land of the free!

A Plea for the Poor Sailors.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-There is one feature of this Cuban massacre Which I think deserves special mention and con-Bideration, that is, the execution of the poor sallors

Now, admitting that the ship was in her character all that these flends claim, were those unfortunate sailors in any way responsible? At the time they shipped they undoubtedly did so according to munitions of war aboard, and it is not probable that they knew more than her destination. Can we afford to have our seamen murdered by the we afford to have our seamen murdered by the dozen? Can we as a nation tolerate such an outrage on a class of men who have always stood by us in our hour of need? The ianilies of these murdered men must have tangible indemnity, and such action must be taken by our government as will prove to Jack that the government as will prove to Jack that the government as sailors of the United States has been splied. Will anything but the blood of their murderers atone for the outrage? Give their surviving comrades—their fellow tolers of the sea—a chance to avenge their deaths; and if they do not give their murderers such a lesson as will prevent a recurrence. derers such a lesson as will prevent a recurrence, I am very much mistaken in the men of the United States Navy. Yours, truly, AN AMERICAN SAILOR.

Treat the Tornado as a Pirate, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 22, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:stranger to you, but one whose name, for a period of twenty-five years, is not unknown in the Washington, to say a few words about this abominable, barbaric, yes, damnable crime that has been perpetrated by that most Catholic nation-Spain. What is the case, or, rather, how does the

First—Spain, not recognizing a rebellion or belligerent powers in Cuba, has herself committed a piratical act in seizing a vessel at sea while bearing a foreign dag for protection.

Second—If Spain was justified in seizing the Virginius and taking her as a prize or otherwise into one of her ports, the only manner in which she could deal with those on board was to declare them prisoners of war or under suspicion, and await the judgment of the Courts as to the character and offence of the vessel.

Now Spain under the dryst head as for as the

Now Spain, under the first head, as far as the butcher's ship Tornado was concerned, has admitted her piracy, and under the second head has proved the same; in other words, the Tornado was

If I mistake not, under the law of nations a pirate is "outside the law," and therefore it is not a question for our government to decide, but rather for the Spanish government to decide, whether the Tornado is a Spanish man-of-war or a pirate. We on our side must abide by facts, and are (in my humble opinion) justified in treating the Tornado as a pirate, for her crime under the laws of nations against our flag and citizens is the prime of piracy, and consequently she may be seized in whatever port she may find shelter. What then, under these circumstances, is the duty

What then, under these circumstances, is the duty of our government? It is not necessary to declare war (and you can take my word for it that no war will arise under it) against Spain.

Now we have nothing to do with Spain. We ignore the complicity of Spain in that butchery. We have merely to deal with a pirate. That pirate is the Tornado; and she may flaunt the Spanish flag—what of that? Pirates are known to change their nationality whenever it suits them. What grounds have we for believing that the pirate is a Spanish man-oi-war, any more than that the pirate herself refused to recognize our flag as the nationality or thield of protection of the Virginus?

The duty of any government that is not craven hearted is simple. Send at once an iron-clad or two to Santiago de Cuba. Unconditionally (Grant Dannot have lorgotten that word so soon) demand the immediate surrender of the pirate—give five minutes more than was accorded those unfortunates; and in case of refusal sink her and her accursed cutthreats, and bring back the Virginius to the United States.

When that simple act of justice is done the great

the United States.

When that simple act of justice is done the great American heart will be calmed and the question ran go to arbitration, or, better still, can be made the subject of lengthy correspondence and arbitration he subject of lengthy correspondence and apolo-pies between the Spanish government and our great Fish at Washington, and, if need be, our Sec-tetary can bow down and kiss as many Spanish feet as he is inclined to. We, the people, will have had some satisfaction for the humiliation. Now for precedents. Look at the history of Eng-land in the China seas. Look at our own when we hombarded friendly towns to capture pirates we combarded friendly towns to capture pirates we were pursuing. Look at Greytown, the Sildell d many others too numerous to mention, they be easily proved for precedents? lived many years as a naturalized citizen in this country, and since the Fremont campaign have been a stanch republican, and unless General Grant, my beau ideal of a soldier and soldier's honor to his flag. sideal of a soldier and soldier's honor to his flag, takes such measures as I am proposing, my faith in the republican party will be greatly shaken and my exalted opinion of the United States greatly damped. I was a Britisher once, and am still a great admirer of their moral courage and promptitude in redressing wrongs, and shall truly feel ashamed of my adopted country if it cannot strike back a rowdy who has insulted her flag without a first recourse to law. It is always safest to go to taw when you become on even terms with the law when you become on even terms with the blackguard, for the fine is smaller. I remember, somewhere between 1830 and 1836, while my honored lather, an Englishman, was Consul of these United States for Syria, that some Turkish soldiers insulted an Arab bervice of an American citizen she was under the protection of the American flag, and in his complaint to the Governor General he demanded, as the only atonement for the insult, that those soldiers should be brought out on the public square and before the injured girl be taere and then basingdood on the bare leet. After some diligibility tinadoed on the bare feet. After some duly-daily-ing my father's firmness gained the day, and the Governor General acquiesced; but day after day governor General acquiesced; but day after day passed and the sentence was still unexecuted. No American man-of-war came to the rescue. But that great friend of this country, Sir John Franklin, commanding a British frigate, while at anchor at Smyrna, heard of, the indignity, and, crowding sail, reached Beyrout, and, calling upon my father, took him almost by lorce to the Governor General's palace, and there demanded the execution of the sentence. He gave the Governor 24 hours, promising at the expiration of that time to take the resposibility—mark you the word—of bombarding the town. There was a brave man—fit representative of a great nation! The sentence was there and then executed, and the American flag owed the vindication of its honor to an Englishman.

Shall we again in this case of a murderous pirate allow England to champion our cause, on the ground that the Virginius was seized in British waters y Forbid it, ye gods! Rather iet us at once Brike down the murderous villain. Yours, &c.

BURNING OF AN EAST INDIAMAN.

KINGSTOWN, Nov. 10, 1873.

Great Excitement in Kingstown Harbor [From the London Standard, November 10.]

The vessel burned in Kingstown harbor this morning was the Nangpore, of 1,521 tons, the property of Messrs. McKennou, of Liverpool, and bound for that port from Calcutta. Her cargo-of cotton, jute, saltpetre and manila-is said to have been worth £40,000. After entering the piers she let go two anchors, but they parted, and she drifted wildly about the harbor, colliding with a schooner from Wicklow and two trawlers, all of which were greatly damaged. The schooner, indeed, is almost a wreck, and her master was thrown overboard and drowned. The vessel continued burning and dritting throughout the night. The Lord Mayor of Dublin was down at the scene of the disaster at an early bour this morning, also Captain Ingram, with two engines and a large detachment of the fire brigade. The flames on board the ship increasing, two six-pounders from the revenue cruiser Fanny were brought to bear upon her for the purpose of sinking her before the fire should reach the saltpetre. This expedient succeeded, and she now lies submerged in 28 feet of water.

The greatest excitement prevailed in Kingstown all day, while efforts were being made to keep the flames from spreading from the Nangpore to the other shipping in the harbor. Large crowds went from Dublin to witness the sight. was late in the day when the shots from the cruiser sank her, which was only done after many ineffectual plans had been adopted to scuttle the ineflectual plans had been adopted to scuttle the vessel. The scene of her entrance into the harbor during the night is described as having been terribly exciting, as all her canvas was "drawing" and the wind nearly after her. To the surprise of the lookers-on, there appeared to be no effort made to shorten sail as she neared the harbor, going through the sea like a witch with her lee gunwale under water. It was not known by those on shore how terrible was the race which was being Bun for how great was the peril which every moment brought nearer. Notwithstanding the heavy gale and the wide spread of canvas on her spars none of them gave way, though they whipped like fishing-rods under the heavy and surging pressure to which they were subjected. The moon, which had not long risen, clearly revealed the ship in all her weird grandeur as she rushed through the heavy sea in volumes of smoke and spray spreading over her. On opening the harbor she rounded up grandly as the smoke drifted to leeward. On she came, and still no effort appeared to be making to take in the canvas. Now a new terror presented itself. As the burning ship was rushing into the midst of the crowds of weather-bound vessels in the harbor it was evident that collision and fre were imminent. When about half a cable's length inside the east pier the burning ship let go her two anchors, and, as she rapidly wore to the strain, her canvas was taken aback and she began to draw her anchors and drift to the southwestward. Nothing could exceed the consternation among the wind-bound vessels, as DESTRUCTION seemed to be inevitable to any craft coming in the way of the dritting ship. The crew were so exhausted from being at the pumps night and day, and trying to keep the fire under, that they were unable to take in canvas when she approached the harbor. She first fouled a fine schooner, deeply laden, and after a fearini crash the lil-fated vessel gave a few heavy lurches and sank, the crew escaping by jumping into the bowsprit rigging of the Nangpore, which still continued her stern course till she came into collision with the schooner Pilot. In a few moments this also was reduced to a mastless wreck. On the Nangpore striking the Pilot, Captain Thomas Ellis, who was in his berth, ran on deck, and was and drowned before assistance could reach him. The anchors of the ship still dragged, and as she rose and fell in the seaway she carried away the moorings of the trawler Echo. This little vessel, when cast loose, went rapidly to leeward, and in a few moments was broken into atoms by the powerful seas, breaking on the barriers beneath the Coast-guard station to the westward of the harbor-a place where many a sad disaster to life and shipping has ere now occurred. The three collisions which the Nangpore experienced had the effect of checking her wild course, and fortunately she came up to her anchors a little to the northeast of the Royal Irish Yacht club house. When it was known that she had saltpetre on board, and that an explosion was dreaded, the alarm became very great. At an early hour messengers were sent for the fire brigade, and to request the presence of the Lord Mayor. Within a half hour after the alarm had been given at the brigade station. Captain Ingram, with two engines and a large detachment of his men, was on the jetty. He had no means of shipping the engines so as to bring water to bear on and prevent the fames reaching the jute and saltpetre. He also found that no time was to be lost, and having gone on board the Nangpore he at once came to the conclusion that there was nothing to prevent a further and greater disaster but to "scuttle" the ship at once by any means that could be procured. The only means within reach were the two six-pounders of the cruiser Queen Victoria, which he recommended to be shotted and fired at the Nangpore so as to hit her "between wind and water." His suggestion was acted on with the result as already stated.

The body of Captain Eilis has been recovered, and Dr. Harty, County Coroner, is about to hold an inquest.
